

Coaching for Success

About the Programme.

It is widely recognised that time and money invested in training and coaching is an efficient way of improving both employee performance and loyalty rates. Coaching has a valuable role to play in ensuring that employees maximise their potential through developing their overall business awareness, their ability to lead and their inter-personal skills. This programme will give aspiring coaches the key tools and techniques used by many of the most influential coaches in the U.K.

Our coaches are among the finest in the country and use techniques that have been used and refined both from the world of business coaching and from the world of sports psychology.

Who is it for?

This programme is aimed at anyone who is responsible for coaching others, whether formally or informally. It is also suitable for anyone who has an interest in helping others solve their own issues and take responsibility for their own learning.
